

AGED HUSBAND SAYS DICKINSON IS MERE FRIEND

Jersey Secretary of State Was Mrs. Cory's Companion With Sanction.

HAD ROOM IN HOME.

"Wouldn't Have Been Gentleman" if He Hadn't Escorted Woman About.

TRENTON, N. J., April 24.—Joseph Cory, of New York, has given remarkable testimony concerning the relations of Secretary of State Dickinson and Mrs. Cory, which will be used by Dickinson in his $100,000 libel suit against Mayor Fagan, of Jersey City. Cory is seventy-seven years old and his wife is fifty-eight. He swears to numerous long trips which Secretary Dickinson, the Republican machine boss of Jersey City, has made with his wife, and says he not only wanted them to go away on voyages together, but that Dickinson "wouldn't have been a gentleman" if he hadn't done just as he did.

Mr. Cory is a travelling salesman for the Trent Tile Company, of Trenton, and says he receives a salary of $1200 a year. He is away much of his time from his home at No. 1802 Seventh avenue, Manhattan, where Mr. Dickinson, who is fifty-five years old, has a sort of "separate room," which is kept for him to occupy whenever he pleases. In fact, the aged salesman says, the politician has a standing invitation to come often and stay till he is ready to depart.

Cory's extraordinary story, told before a special master in chancery, will be used by Col. Dickinson to refute the charges of Mayor Fagan, who insisted that it wasn't just proper to reappoint the machine boss as Secretary of State.

Exonerated by Aged Husband.

Dickinson was reappointed with the understanding, it was said, that if anything against him was proved he would get out. When the appointment was made by Gov. Stokes, however, the Secretary considered it as a vindication and sued Fagan for alleged damages.
To show that everything was all right in his relations with Mrs. Cory the aged husband was brought forth to make an affidavit, which he did to the complete satisfaction of himself and Dickinson.
Its contents were made public to-day.

According to the deposition Col. Dickinson became acquainted with Mrs.
Cory during the winter of 1888 when the Corys were living at the Hotel Windsor, this city, and Col. Dickinson was Speaker of the House of Assembly. The Corys moved to New York in 1893 and, according to Cory, Col. Dickinson visited them "every two or three days or whenever he was in New York, and at my earnest solicitation always."

These visits, Cory said, had continued up to the present time. Cory said his wife, with his knowledge, is an intimate personal friend of Col. Dickinson.

Cory testified that his wife went to Europe in 1900, remaining six weeks, and that Col. Dickinson accompanied her during all the trip. In the summer of 1901, according to Cory, Col. Dickinson and Mrs. Cory went to Nova Scotia and, to use Cory's own words, "they were together during all the trip, or he has deceived me."

Other places which Cory said his wife visited in company with Col. Dickinson were Atlantic City, Lakewood, Old Point Comfort, Yellowstone Park, to all of which places he said the Colonel took Mrs. Cory at her husband's request. In 1904, Cory swore, his wife and Col.

Dickinson went to Norway. In response to the question of the examining lawyer Cory said he was confident that Col.
Dickinson accompanied Mrs. Cory on this occasion and if he did not "he was not a gentleman."

Once at Their Feast.

Mr. Cory was slightly forgetful when Lawyer Lane, for Fagan, cross-examined him. He could not remember a certain afternoon, No. 93, which the attorney appeared to believe had something to do with one of the trips of Dickinson and Mrs. Cory. He said he was at one of the feasts which his friend the Secretary and his wife often had. It was at the Waldorf-Astoria, and he enjoyed it very much. He liked the society of Dickinson, he said.

Despite his age Mr. Cory was a lively wit.
"How do you live?" asked Lane.
"By eating and drinking my breath," he replied. He went on to explain that he gave his wife $60 a week to pay the rent and run the apartment. "I don't live like the Vanderbilts," he said, "though I live well enough."

Lower Lane asked him:
"Mr. Cory, you testified in direct examination that the Colonel took your wife out at your earnest solicitation."

"That is correct," he said.
"Always at your earnest solicitation."

"He has an invitation to take her out any time he will. That is what I mean by it. He could not see me every time, probably, because I am away."

Friends of Dickinson's named Samuel Reineke and Joseph Guisto had been in his home, Cory said. In fact, he had met them there. He didn't think they stayed over night.

any time he will. That is what I mean
by it. He could not see me every

WOMEN ORGANIZE TO STOP CAR-CROWDING

They Will Also Fight Car-Ahead Evil and Conductors' Soiled Linen.

Mr. Shonts, in rehabilitating the city car service, will be assisted by the Society for the Protection of Passengers' Rights, now completing its reorganization. This society, which flourished in the days before the Subway brought relief to transportation conditions, is planning an active campaign against:
Overcrowded cars,
"Car-ahead" nuisance,
Conductors' insolence,
Transfer nuisance,
Brooklyn Bridge breakdowns, Conductors' soiled linen.

The officers of the new society are:
Mrs. John Fowler Trow, President; Mrs. Robert Hamilton Rucker, Vice-President; and Mrs. Dore Lyon, Treasurer.

Committees have been organized to look into each detail of the nuisances scheduled for reform. Every woman's club will be asked to co-operate. The committees will do their own investigating, making notes of the conditions of the present service, and by next autumn they expect to have enough evidence collected to carry their grievances to court for a demand of better facilities. If conditions are not improved by that time The organization has employed legal counsel, which includes Frank Elmore Davis, to prosecute their demands for reform.

ADLER'S CONDITION IMPROVES.

Hundreds of persons called at the residence of Port Warden Charles S. Adler, No. 32 Broome street, last night to inquire about his condition. Mr. Adler, who is Republican leader of the Eighth Assembly District, caught pneumonia while attending a christening. Three doctors were in attendance upon him yesterday and his condition was somewhat improved. It was said that he would probably recover.

TRAIN CREWS IN PRISON.

Americans Accused of Smuggling Arms Into Mexico.

EL PASO, Tex., April 24.—The crews of all American, of seven trains on the Sonora Railroad, are in prison at Her-mosillo, Mex., charged with smuggling arms and ammunition into Mexico.

Whose Toes Have Been Trod Upon?

THE NEW YORK TIMES, which evidently thinks the matter of enough importance to discuss it editorially, under the caption of "Oculists and Opticians," among other things, has this to say—

"There are incompetent oculists, just as there are incompetent doctors." "But the fact remains that the oculist, as such, has not even begun to prepare himself for the examination of eyes that should precede every prescription of glasses."

This Is a Startling Truth!

And we have striven for years to impress upon the public—THE ABSOLUTE DANGER OF PURCHASING EYEGLASSES IN JEWELRY OR DEPARTMENT STORES OR ENTRUSTING THE TREATMENT OF EYE TROUBLES TO ANY BUT THE REGISTERED PHYSICIAN. The strength of our convictions is shown in the fact that we have an organized staff of Registered Physicians—NOT spectacle salespeople.
